Sellers who distribute alcohol is relatively a lot. Many people who consume alcohol have to deal with the police because of uncontrolled person when they consumed alcohol excessively. We need a policy from the police to tackle these problems. Problems in this study were (1) How is the policy of the police to overcome the circulation of liquor in Bandar Lampung city? (2) Why are there an inhibiting factor in the prevention of the circulation of liquor?

This study used normative juridical approach and empirical jurisdiction. Informants consisted of police, civil service units, and academia. Data were collected by library research and field study. The data were analyzed qualitatively.

Based on the results of research and discussion, it can be concluded, that (1) The policy of the police in prevention of liquor circulation in the city of Bandar Lampung is using penal and non-penal efforts. Efforts penal done by conducting investigations, searches, and confiscation in an indication of the crime of liquor trafficking in a place by conducting inspection operations or raids independently or in cooperation with the relevant parties. Then, by conducting a quick check on the field. Result Files can be directly transferred to the court. Non-penal efforts was done by conducting a police goes to school and goes to campus program in collaboration with the National Narcotics Agency (BNN). Bhabinkamtibmas personnel provided direction and invited the community to participate in helping to oversee the distribution of alcohol. Bandar Lampung Police also provided legal opinions and assisted Government of Bandar Lampung to enforce rules on alcohol. (2) Inhibiting factors in the prevention of the circulation of liquor factors included the law itself; factors of law enforcement; and community factors. The cause of inhibiting factors in the prevention of circulation of liquor occurred due to weak enforcement of local regulations on alcohol; the occurrence of foul play in the form of transactional (exchange) related acts of bribery or other misconduct; trade and circulation of alcohol was often protected (backed) by rogue officers.
