Parole is the process of convicted education outside Departement of Correction after enduring imprisonment at least 2/3 (two-thirds) or minimum 9 (nine) months. One of the conditions for parole is a letter of guarantee from the family, which is one of public policy made by the government in order to provide guidance to inmates not to serve their sentences in full. Problem in this thesis how to guarantee the implementation of the conditional release program for inmates at the Narcotics Penitentiary Class II A Bandar lampung and overcoming obstacles.

This study classified normative research and empirical juridical using primary data and secondary data. Type of research is descriptive analysis, which presents the result of research and discussion in detail, complete, compreheensive and systematic. The approach used is study issues of legislation and field studies.

The result showed that guarantee letter from family is one of administrative requirement should be fulfilled by the convicted to obtain parole or provisional release. The convicted who did not have close relatives or coming from other regions could obtain parole by fulfilling all requirements including guarantee letter from family and submitted it to BAPAS in the regions where his/her family lived, where the family previously had received Litmas letter. Efforts to overcome obstacles as in the interrelated factors, namely (1) law enforcement factors, (2) Factor infrastructure and facilities to support law enforcement, and (3) Factors Society. So efforts should be made to overcome the obstacles is to improve the coordination of their respective agencies involved in granting parole program, make adequate means to avoid excess capacity, so as to support the inmates can continue to behave well, and the participation of families and communities can receive and participate assist in the coaching program inmates.

The researcher recommends to every officer agencies should improve coordination among agencies, and to the community to support the parole program that can make inmates continue to improve themselves and be accepted again in the community.
