Violence during relationship is a kind of violence which is happened to women. Surprisingly, it gets less attention from society. Many people think that violence is impossible to be happened in relationship because during relationship there will be only a beautiful moment that the man will talk and act sweetly to the woman. Besides, a lack of information about violence during relationship gives effect to less attention in relationship itself. Therefore, many women become victims in defending their relationship from pre marriage until marriage. When they are married, violence which they have got is not less but becomes worse.

The objectives of the research are to find out and explain about the reasons why violence happen, the kinds of violence which are happened during relationship, the effects of violence, victims' perspectives and the solution of the problem. The research uses case-study method with qualitative research. The determination the informant uses purposive sampling in which the informants are chosen intentionally based on the criteria and uses another people as key person or mediator in order the researcher can know and communicate with the informant. The techniques of data collection are deep interview and documentation.

The findings of the research show that violence which are happened during relationship are caused by unfair gender culture, patriarchy culture, and relation of authority which is not equal and has developed and become entrenched of a society. The kind of violence that is experienced by the informants during relationship is psychological violence. But there are also physical and sexual violence. The effect of violence is most of the informants feel not free to associate with their friends and feel inferior or shy. Whereas the solution or the ceasing of dating violence which are done by five informants are self-introspection, keeping of the problem, breaking of the relationship, talking calmly, and involving close friend to find out the best solution.

Based on the existing phenomena about violence during relationship, to create relationship without violence, socializations about the comprehension of violence during relationship are needed for all of societies especially for girls. Besides, special organization in handling the case of violence during relationship, safe home or shelter are also needed to give counseling for the victims and accommodate them for a while so that it can save their life and make them think rationally in taking decision about the continuity of their relationship. Socialization about the understanding of violence law for women which is held by organization that cares about violence for woman especially violence during relationship from law perspective is also important. It will make the doer be more understand that what they have done is kind of criminality which can make them get law punishment.
