Law on National Education System (UUSPN) has been established by DPR on June 11, 2003, which contains " The Government and local governments must ensure the availability of budget for implementation of education for every citizen aged seven to fifteen years" (Article 2 Ayat 1) . Grain states that government shall provide elementary school up to junior high school level for free, or at least cheap. School Operational Cost Program is a realization of the Law. With the existence of the BOS program, all students can be critical of poor quality education so that the quality of Human Resources (HR) can be increased then the amount of Gross Enrollment can be increased and the effect on the Human Development Index.

Issues raised in this paper is how the influence of the School Operational Cost Program (BOS) elementary and junior high schools and Enrollment Rough on the Human Development Index (HDI) in Lampung. The purpose of this paper is to study and analyze the influence of the School Operational Assistance (BOS) and Rough Enrollment on the Human Development Index (HDI) in a HR increase in Lampung. Analyzer used in this writing is descriptive and qualitative analysis.

From the calculation using table analysis showed that in the year 2005 - 2009 (years of research) there is a significant improvement in the quality of Human Resources in Lampung. BOS Program Participation Rate and Human Development Index Coarse affect views of the increase - average each year. - Average change in the BOS funds each year is about 27.14%. Total - average gross primary school participation rate of 108.5% and amounted to 82.2 with the SMP - average HDI of 68.79%. Achieving Gross Enrollment is enough in the completion of nine-year compulsory education so that the achievement of the Human Development Index belonging to the upper middle class so that the purpose of the Government and the Ministry of Education can be achieved.
