This study was conducted to evaluate the implementation of the restructuring on Badan Ketahanan Pangan dan Pelaksana Penyuluhan for food security in the city of Bandar Lampung. In evaluating the implementation of this restructuring researchers used the theory of formal evaluation by Dunn in Nugroho focused on assessing or evaluating the organizational elements proposed by Hasibuan. This study will also describe some of the factors supporting and hindering the implementation of the restructuring of the Badan Ketahanan Pangan dan Pelaksana Penyuluhan in maintaining food security in the city of Bandar Lampung. This research type is descriptive research with a qualitative approach. This research was conducted at Badan Ketahanan Pangan dan Pelaksana Penyuluhan city of Bandar Lampung.

Implementation of the restructuring in Badan Ketahanan Pangan dan Pelaksana Penyuluhan has the goal of making the organization to be more effective and efficient in providing services and maintaining food security and institutional capacity of farmers. Based on research that has been done, it can be concluded that the implementation of the restructuring on Badan Ketahanan Pangan dan Pelaksana Penyuluhan has not run optimally to achieve intended purpose. Not yet achieved the goal of restructuring is because there are still some elements of the organization that has not run optimally, namely the human element, objectives, employment, technology and environment. Implementation of the restructuring in Badan Ketahanan Pangan dan Pelaksana Penyuluhan is also influenced by two factors, namely supporting and environmental regulations as well as four inhibiting factors, namely human resources, infrastructure, land conditions and regulations. To achieve the objectives of this restructuring in Badan Ketahanan Pangan dan Pelaksana Penyuluhan should be able to improve performance by more aggressively returning to disseminate and create innovative programs to reduce the consumption of rice food community to be able to create food security conditions in the city of Bandar Lampung.
