Criminal acts of prostitution had been developed with the progress of Internet technology in the form of online prostitution. Enforcement of Law No. 11 of 2008 as an umbrella law online prostitution prevention. Legal gap is not all regional police agency was able to uncover prostitution online. The problem of this research are: (1) How does law enforcement against online prostitution as a criminal offense prostitution? (2) What are the factors that constrain law enforcement against online prostitution as a criminal offense prostitution?

The approach used is a juridical problem normative and empirical. The data were collected through library research and field studies. Furthermore, the data The data were analyzed qualitatively.

Based on the results of research and discussion can be concluded: (1) Law enforcement against online prostitution as a crime committed by the Special Criminal Investigation Directorate of Bangka Belitung Islands Regional Police conducted the investigation process to search for and collect evidence on the crime of prostitution online and to find suspects . Once the investigation is completed, the case transferred to the Prosecutor and the Court for further proceedings in accordance with the criminal justice system. (2) Factors inhibiting factor consisting of legal, law enforcement factor, factor means and facilities in law enforcement, community factors and cultural factors. The most influential factor in the weak enforcement of laws against prostitution is a factor of law enforcement. This is because not all investigators have the educational background of the law, lack of control mechanisms of the components of the criminal justice, law enforcement fails to demonstrate exemplary, no cyber unit, mastery of technology is still lacking, law enforcement cooperation between countries that have not been effective.

Suggestion of this research are: (1) It takes a commitment in law enforcement against crime online prostitution and improving the quality of law enforcement both mastery of the law, the use of a foreign language and the language of law and the means and facilities. (2) Required synergy between legal awareness and moral consciousness of society in the enforcement of laws against online prostitution.
