

ABSTRACT

THE INFLUENCE OF HUMAN DEVELOPMENT INDEX AND THE UNEMPLOYMENT RATE TO THE NUMBER OF POOR PEOPLE IN SOUTH LAMPUNG 2002-2012

By :

TRIYA PUTRI GUNAYATI

This research was meant to find out the influence of human development index (IPM), the unemployment rate (JP) against number of poor people (JPM) in the county of south lampung. The data used is data secondary runtun time (time series) during a period of 2002-2012. The testing of hypotheses used with the approach of the classical, the assumption the hypothesis and ordinary least square (ols) by using eviews 4.1

The results of the analysis of the research this really shows you that the variable human development index do not affect in significantly to the number of poor in lampung southern district. While the unemployment rate variables influence significantly to the number of poor in lampung southern district. Besides giving the results of this research also can conclude an estimation of some concrete steps that must be conducted by government relating to increase human development to support the quality of human resources especially in the aspect of health education and better community income

Keywords : Human Development Index, Unemployment Rate , Number of Poor People.