The development of Indonesian History teaching materials was done with the aim of making a module in the form of Lampungnese folklore to instill character and local wisdom values into students and to analyze the learning effectiveness after the use of the module.

This study was conducted through Research and Development (R&D) approach. The results show that: (1) there were 12 character values contained in Lampungnese folklore; (2) the character values contained in Lampungnese folklore had relevance to Indonesian History learning; (3) the Indonesian History module in the form of Lampungnese folklore to uphold local wisdom was developed based on need assessment analysis; (4) the t-test results show that there was a significant difference in average achievements of the students between the experimental class taught by using the Indonesian History module made through research and development and that of control group. Based on those two tests, it could be concluded that the Indonesian History module made through research and development was effective to be used in learning.
