

ABSTRACT

EFFECT OF TAX RETRIBUTION, ENTERPRISES INCOME AND OTHER PAD VALID ON ECONOMIC GROWTH SE-CITY IN LAMPUNG 2000-2012

BY

BELLA CHINTYA EDWIN

Regional autonomy is a challenge for Local Government in reducing dependence on government and accelerate the improvement of public welfare. Revenue is the most important source of financing in the process of regional autonomy which is the main component of revenues derived from the tax component, retribution, enterprises income and other income.

The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of local taxes, levies, enterprises income, and other income to economic growth all city in Lampung Province. The data used is the time series data of annual data from the years 2000-2012. Hypothesis testing is done by multiple linear regression approach, Ordinary Least Square (OLS) and classical assumption.

The results showed that the variables of local taxes and no significant positive effect on economic growth all city in Lampung, variable levies positive and significant effect on economic growth all city in Lampung, variable income and other income enterprises negative and not significant to economic growth all city In Lampung Province.

Keywords: tax, retribution, enterprises income, other income Ordinary Least square (OLS).